How Things Have Changed for the Commander

“Operational warfare is the level of command which coordinates the details of tactics with the overarching goals of strategy.”

- Everything happens faster . . . because it can and must
- It is highly unlikely that he will act alone
- He is increasingly trying to use all instruments of power
- His mission is as much about conflict prevention as conflict dominance
- He must join together Intelligence and operations . . .
- In a globalized world, he is in a battle for perceptions
- His current fight is counter-extremism, counter-insurgency

Closing Thought... Questions
